The Yellow-Hair'd Laddie.

An Admired DUET,

From that beautiful Scots Paſtoral Comedy,

The GENTLE SHEPHERD.

Sung by Mrs. Cargill and Miſs Wheeler, in the Characters of Patie and Peggy.

PEGGY.

WHEN firſt my dear laddie gade to the green hill,
And I at ewe-milking firſt try'd my young ſkill,
To bear the milk-bowie nae pain was to me,
When I to the fold the herd gather'd wi' thee.

PATIE.

When corn riggs wav'd yellow, and blue hether bells,
Bloom'd bonny on moreland and ſweet riſing fells,
Nae birns, briers, or breckens, gave trouble to me,
If I found that the berries were ripen'd for thee.

BOTH.

How fondly can lovers truſt what they deſire;
The praiſe that's ſae gentle encreaſes love's fire;
Give me ſtill this pleaſure, my ſtudy ſhall be
To make myſel better, and worthy of thee.

FOWLER, PRINTER, SALISBURY.
